IBC2023 TESTIMONIALS:

“ Things move very quickly. I don't need to tell people that. It's really important to put yourself in a place where your imagination might be sparked from many different directions globally. Only at something like IBC can you achieve all of those things in one space over quite a short period of time.

Fiona Campbell,
Controller Youth Audience, BBC iPlayer and BBC Three – BBC

“ IBC is one of those places where you can just really get together and share ideas, both with manufacturers, but also with other broadcasters. And that for me keeps us relevant and keeps us all talking about the right problems.

Ian Wagdin,
Senior Technology Transformation Manager, BBC R&D

“ You can feel the buzz, both outside coming in, but then actually on the floor. I think there's just so much opportunity to think about the future in a meaningful way. The connections you can make here with like-minded people and trying to get under the bonnet of all the opportunities of what future technology and industry could bring. There's no other place like it that I know of. So I'm very excited to see more.

Matt Risley
Managing Director of 4Studio, Channel 4

“ Every time I come to IBC, I learn something new. I attend the Showcase Theater. I walk around. I talk to many people. It's a great place to come and learn and get ready for the future.

Terri Davies,
President, Trusted Partner Network

“ What's incredibly important about a large trade show like this is the human interactivity that you get by bumping into people who you would not have bumped into in your home city. Learning about new technologies and new trends in the industry, which again, you wouldn't have picked up unless you were here.

Eddie Hamilton,
Editor A.C.E

“ IBC is so important because it provides a venue for the community to come together. When you're able to come together with customers and partners, you're able to ideate and you're able to provide diverse perspectives that would normally not be able to come out. That's good for business and it's good for the people that we serve.
